BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

James Granbery Ward Jr., MD, was born November 27, 1934 in Charlotte, NC, and died at the age of 74 on May 28, 2009 in Charleston, SC. He married Rosalyn Louise McIlwain in 1960 and had four children.

Ward received his medical degree from the Medical University of South Carolina in 1962, among five others including a B.S. in Biology and Chemistry, MT/ASCP in Medical Technology, M.S. in Genetics and Microbiology, M.S. in Psychology and a M.Ed. in Special Education. He served as both the Chief of Pediatrics and Chief of Professional Services at the rank of Lt. Col. (USAF), from 1971 to 1973. Ward practiced as a pediatrician and family practitioner in Mt. Pleasant, S.C. in addition to holding many teaching appointments. At the time of death he was an attending physician at both PedsPlus, a Roper/St. Francis after-hours urgent care program, and the College of Charleston Student Health Services, in addition to holding the position of Clinical Assistant Professor at the Medical University of South Carolina.

Ward was a lecturer and expert in the areas of ADHD and dyslexia and was on the National Board of Directors of the International Dyslexia Association. He was also a member of the SC Academy of Pediatrics, Charleston County Medical Society, South Carolina Medical Association, Charleston County Pediatrics Society, Society of American Biologists, South Carolina Academy of Science, and the Carolina's Branch of the Orton Dyslexia Society. He was also past presidents of both the Waring Library Society and the Charleston Symphony. Ward's honor society memberships and fraternities include AOA, Phi Sigma and Beta Beta Beta.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The James G. Ward Jr., Collection, 1978 -2009, consists of 2 boxes (1 cubic foot) of material arranged alphabetically by subject. The collection documents two areas of Ward's professional and personal interests; pediatric research and diseases of the Hawaiian royal family.

The pediatric research series, 1978-2009, consist of slides, newspaper clippings, bulletins, transparencies, one CD and handwritten notes taken by Ward. Also included are materials from the 1995 Dynamics of Dyslexia Southeast Regional Spring Conference, given by The Orton Dyslexia Society. The slides pertain to Dr. Ward's 1995 conference presentation, and a PowerPoint presentation on CD from 2003 is also included. Research regarding the medical and non-medical treatment of ADD and ADHD, emergency contraceptives, and childhood urinary tract infection diagnosis is included.

The Hawaiian royal family series, 2002-2009, consist of newspaper clippings, four books, picture postcards, photocopies, one photograph, one VHS tape, one magazine and handwritten research notes taken Ward regarding the Hawaiian royal family and their medical history. Included is a genealogy of the royal family, as well as newspaper clippings documenting the activities of the Hawaiian kingdom government and the Kamehameha Schools Hawaiian-only admissions policy.

CITATION FORM: James G. Ward Jr., Collection, MSS 986, Waring Historical Library, MUSC, Charleston, SC.
